

I looked at the small coffee cup in my hands and started to say a few words. My friend looked at me with huge eyes. She finally said ‘Damla, did we talk about this? Did I tell you how I felt about my job?’ I looked at her and said ‘Hon, I know what you feel the moment I think of you. I haven’t seen you in weeks, and no we haven’t talked about this with words but we don’t need to. I can read you like a book.’ I continued to tell her all that was coming to me through what I saw in the cup, complete with her next action steps.

This was an Intuitive Turkish Coffee reading. Something I have known all my life. My mother read the Turkish Coffee, my grandmother did, and her mother, and so on. It was normal in our home to drink the coffee until you reach the unfiltered grounds, turn it upside down with a wish, then see a loved one read your energy to you through the coffee grounds.

Over the years I realized that I am not reading the images only. They are a starting point yes, an entry into your realm that connects me to your soul and your soul guides. What comes after is a pure 'soul patterns, life guidance, and what you need to hear most right now' kind of reading.

Another client called me the other day. I had read Turkish Coffee for her two months ago. She said 'Damla, all you told me is coming true. All the dynamics you described to me at the office, it is all falling into place piece by piece.' When something like that happens, I know that that is the power of your own soul. Your being knows your patterns. Your being knows your highest quantum possibilities and probabilities. My job is to be a translator to it all. To be perfectly honest, most of the time I remember very little from each intuitive reading as I am completely in the moment, focusing on being a clear channel.

In an online reading, you don't have to drink the really strong Turkish Coffee. While you sit comfortably at home, I will prepare and pour your Turkish coffee, turn it upside down with your intentions and wishes, and tune into its magical messages for you. No coffee drinking required. It is not about what images I see in there, the cup is a vessel for me to connect with your soul essence and divine soul helpers and relay their soul gifts and messages to you.

“I had never had a Turkish Coffee reading before but somehow felt called to trust Damla to give me one. Everything she said was exactly on point and I was surprised because things were brought up that I hadn't been currently thinking about but I knew instantly she was right. Though my reading was not rosy (the message, not the delivery of it) it was still somehow comforting. Damla gave me hope and I left knowing that I would get through what was ahead of me.”
